

Rifles meet Droplets

One of the most interesting publicity stunts ever seen on campus will unfold next Tuesday at noon when the Quebec Rifles play a game of touch football against the Blood Drive "Droplets" on Lower Campus.

The Rifles, of the United Football League, are playing their first year in Montreal. Their coach, the well-known quarterback, Sam Echeverry, will revert to his old position during this game which will highlight a week of special activities planned by the Blood Drive Committee.

The Droplets, the official 'goon squad' of the Blood Drive, consist of forty campus beauties. The group will be appearing at all Blood Drive functions, singing on campus, and helping out in the clinic.

Goon squad

During the past few weeks, committee members have been hard at work with the aim of gathering together all the most beautiful charmers on campus. All agree that this goal has been admirably realized.

The Drive, which begins this Friday in the ballroom of the Union, is expected to be the world's largest drive of this type. Although the McGill record is 3,210 pints, achieved in 1962, it is certain to be broken this year with the inclusion of the McGill graduates to the clinic.

Grads contribute

Paul Yaphe (B.C.L. 2), Chairman of the Drive said that "due to the unbending efforts of D. Lorne Gales, E.P. Taylor, as well as other members of the Graduates' Society, we are certain that we will give 5,000 pints. This is a wonderful example of interest in student

The clinic will be the only one operating in the Province of Quebec while it is being held at McGill. "Thus McGill has a great responsibility and we must not fail the Red Cross," said Arthur Sanft, a vice-chairman of the Drive.

Great enthusiasm

Valuable prizes will be awarded to lucky donors, and faculties and fraternities will be vying for the famous and elusive Blood Drive trophies.

For the first time, R.V.C. will be having its own blood drive campaign. Between 12:15 and 2:10 daily, up to October 28, residents will be able to make clinic appointments in the front hall of the residence.

Keys expand ranks with nine additions

Nine honorary Scarlet Keys were appointed by the Nominating Committee yesterday. They are Mike Blumenstein, Steve Doyle, Mel Hershenfield, Nandasiri Jasentuliyani, Ezra Kleinman, Barry Levitt, Seymour Mayne, John Stikeman, and Paul Tichauer.

They were chosen for outstanding contributions to campus life, high academic achievement, and definite qualities of leadership. As honorary members, they are selected from among students in their final year at McGill; they remain as active members for the remainder of this academic year.

Regular appointments are made in January, these students being chosen from their penultimate year.

Revue music

Mike Blumenstein, a third year law student, has written the scores for the Red and White Revue continuously for the past few years, and was music director for 'The Man in the Green Flannel Suit' (1964).

A fourth year dental student, Mel Hershenfield is the Editor of the McGill Dental Review.

International Students' Association president Nandasiri Jasentuliyani (L.L.M.2) is, in addition, one of McGill's delegates to the University Model United Nations.

Ezra Kleinman, another fourth year dental student, is Dentistry's representative on the Students' Executive Council, in charge of publications.

Three engineers

A fifth year Engineer, Barry Levitt is one of two Engineering Representatives on the SEC, with the portfolio of Finance Director.

Seymour Mayne (B.A. 4) is a campus poet whose work has appeared in Forge, and the Daily.

John Stikeman, another fifth year Engineer, is Co-Editor of the McGill Engineer and a member of the McGill Intercollegiate Squash Team.

The third fifth year Engineer on the list, Paul Tichauer, is the other Engineering Representative on the SEC. He is the Director of Clubs and Societies and a Vice-Chairman of Blood Drive.

STAFF FOR THIS ISSUE

JOHN led the group — if you could call it a group (few showed up), and if you could call it lead... but some came — Sharon, Saloun, Daisy Novac, Oscar, Rhona, Sharon, (sports desk)... rather than write a lousy crumbly long masthead, I will make a lonely exit into the sunset, who heard of a scarlet poet!

Kudos for King

The awarding of a Nobel Peace Prize to the Rev. Martin Luther King is a fitting tribute to his efforts in the cause of civil rights in the United States. It also emphasizes the important fact, too little recognized, that King is not merely the "Man of the Year", i.e. the one who, for better or for worse, most influenced the year's headlines; more significantly, he is also a champion of non-violence, the use of peaceful methods to gain desired objectives.

It is safe to say that without his beneficial influence and painstaking efforts at training both Negro and white civil rights workers in the method of non-violence, the long struggle for equality would have been and would be more bloody and violent than has actually been the case.

This awarding of the Peace Prize to a "moderate" — referring of course to methods, not objectives — provides much-needed encouragement to those who seek radical changes, whether the context be that of North American, South African, or even Quebec society, without resorting simply to violence itself.

Too often moderate leadership remains unappreciated and ignored until too late, when more radical elements have seized control and made apparent the merits of its predecessor by contrast. In the Province of Quebec, for example, there is a distinct danger that control of the nationalist movement could slip from the hands of a rational moderate, like Jean Lesage, into those of an irrational radical. This is not to suggest that Reggie Chartrand's ragged mob is about to seize power, but we would do well to remember that ultimately intransigence is met with intransigence.

And so once again we commend the choice of Martin Luther King and the moral support thus expressed for his cause of peaceful revolution.

Y, oh why?

The first Jenkins to provoke conflict was the luckless fellow whose severed ear caused a call to arms, circa 1739, which resulted in what was called with historical appropriateness the War of Jenkins' Ear. Now President Johnson is faced with a verbal conflict provoked by a different Jenkins and a different extremity.

It seems that Walter Jenkins, the President's most trusted aide and confidant, was arrested for making an indecent gesture near the Washington Y.M.C.A. We echo the horror of the Republican National Committee at the thought that Mr. Jenkins was privy to state secrets, and even more so that he is reputed to have been the "last to leave the White House at night".

But, after all, an indecent gesture is not so heinous in itself. What would surely be more intriguing is to know why Jenkins chose the 'Y', that temple to physical culture and clean living, for the scene of his lewd action.

Formation of a new U.N. Agency

"Economic development and social progress should be the common concern of the whole international community and should, by increasing economic prosperity and well-being, help strengthen peaceful relations and co-operation among nations."

This statement is embodied in the final act of the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development (UNCTAD), convened in Geneva last Spring to better adapt world trade to the development needs of two-thirds of the world's population and to reverse the present trends in trade, described by Secretary-General U Thant as "the dilemma of our times."

With the establishment of UNCTAD as a permanent organ of the Assembly General, a new era can be said to have begun in the evolution of international trade and development. The new agency may help to end the division of the world into areas of affluence and intolerable poverty — the outstanding challenge of our times.

At the outset the Conference identified certain obvious maladies which form the core of the present world economic problem. In a period when their import requirements and need for technical knowledge have been inadequate, the resulting "trade gap" has been widening and, according to U.N. estimates, could reach the order of $20 billion by 1970.

Other unfavourable trends facing developing countries and other countries highly dependent on a narrow range of primary commodities — including the slow rate of growth of demand for their exports, the increasing participation of developing countries in world trade in primary commodities, deterioration in the terms of trade of developing countries from 1950 to 1962, and the widespread use of substitutes and synthetics — were identified as seriously hampering the efforts of these countries to develop, diversify, and industrialize.

At Geneva, therefore, there was a widespread recognition of the need for change in the present structure of international trade by adopting a program of practical action aimed at increasing exports and the export earnings of developing countries and accelerating their economic development.

The Conference agreed that developed, industrialized countries should assist the developing countries to speed up economic and social progress. It adopted a series of specific recommendations.

● UNCTAD WILL ATTEMPT TO REVERSE THE PRESENT TRENDS IN TRADE — "THE DILEMMA OF OUR TIMES"

In order to deal with the urgent problem facing the primary commodity trade of developing countries, the Conference recommended international commodity arrangements and the removal of existing or potential obstacles to commodity trade; compensatory financing; and the promotion of industries with an export potential in developing countries so as to reduce reliance on a mere expansion of exports of primary products and raw materials.

The Conference also recognized the need for measures to stimulate trade between countries having different economic and social systems; the role of the public sector, as well as that of private capital, domestic and foreign, in the development process; for a wider range of products of developing countries to have freer access to the markets of developed countries, and for special measures favouring exports from developing countries.

The Conference recommended a series of criteria for financial co-operation provided by industrialized countries both through bilateral and multilateral programs of assistance to developing countries.

Another area of interest was institutional arrangements. The Conference called on the United Nations General Assembly, at its nineteenth session in November, to "take suitable action with a view to the establishment of a specialized agency for industrial development."

Among the functions of the proposed agency would be to publish information concerning industrial technology, to assist the regional planning of industrial development in developing countries, to recommend action, offer advice and guidance, and to co-operate in the training of the staff needed for the accelerating industrial development of developing countries.

● THE AGENCY WILL PROVIDE FOR SUSTAINED EFFORT ON THE PART OF THE INTERNATIONAL COMMUNITY.

Recognizing the need for sustained effort on the part of the international community and for continuing machinery to meet the problems of trade and development, the Conference recommended the establishment of the Conference on Trade and Development (UNCTAD) as an organ of the United Nations General Assembly.

This was the result of the widespread desire among developing countries for a comprehensive trade organization, and the recognition of the fact that further institutional arrangements are necessary to continue the work initiated by the Conference and to implement its recommendations and conclusions.

UNCTAD would be convened at intervals of not more than three years, and its membership would comprise all states which are members of the United Nations and the specialized agencies.

UNCTAD would promote international trade with a view to accelerating economic development. It would facilitate the coordination of United Nations activities in the field of trade, and initiate action for the negotiation and adoption of multilateral trade conventions. The possible future evolution of institutional arrangements would be kept under review by the Conference, including the establishment of a specialized agency for industrial development.

A Trade and Development Board was set up as the permanent organ of the Conference. It will consist of 55 members elected by the Conference, and will meet twice a year, reporting to the Conference as well as to the General Assembly.

The Board will establish subsidiary organs including three committees on manufacturing, invisibles and financing related trade, and a committee on commodities which would co-ordinate the activities of all existing bodies in the field and is charged with the duty of preparing a draft on General Agreement on Commodity Arrangements.

A permanent secretariat has been established with the United Nations Secretariat, headed by the Secretary General of the Conference. All expenses of the Conference and others are to be borne by the regular budget of the United Nations.

Manitoban censors ban 'Kiss' screening (CUP)—A 36-minute film called "Kiss" was banned by Manitoba provincial censors before it could be shown to a University of Manitoba audience last week.

The film consists of 12 three-minute sequences, each showing a continuous shot of a couple kissing. One of them shows two boys in this behavior.

The film was to have been part of a program entitled "The North American Expedition of New American Cinema" being presented by an American, Robert Brown, in a university residence auditorium.

The chairman of the students' committee who organized the program said he believed censors objected to the film as a whole. "They felt even the heterosexual scenes were pornographic," he said. A censor board spokesman refused comment.

Brown, himself a film-maker, described "kiss" as a "fun film." Boston audiences liked it and it was shown at the recent New York International Film Festival.

He added, "The censors' decision surprised the hell out of me."

The film's creator is Andy Warhol, who specializes in filming everyday occurrences without moving the camera. His other films include "Sleep", a six hour continuous sequence of a man sleeping.

The aim of the North American Expedition of New American Cinema is to show "avant garde" American films. Among the other films in the program are two political satires and an updated Greek legend.

"Kiss" was last week in the custody of the censors until it could be shipped back to its New York owners.

wildlife series

Island Treasure, a natural history film, will open the third annual series of Audubon Wildlife Films, sponsored by the Redpath Museum, tonight 8:15, in the Physical Sciences Centre Auditorium.

Dr. Walter Breckenridge, Director of the Minnesota Museum of Natural History, will present his own photographic record of wildlife on an isolated island in the upper Mississippi River. Artists, photographers and naturalists will be interested to compare his observations with our own Eastern Canadian wilderness.

Season tickets for the series of five lectures are obtainable at the Redpath Museum. Price for adults, $6.00; students, $3.00. Single lecture tickets may be purchased at the door for $1.25, 75 cents respectively.

Ricoeur discusses dream interpretation

by HONEY DRESHER

Professor Paul Ricoeur of the Sorbonne last night addressed an overflow audience of the Philosophical Society on the Topic "The Knowledge of Self; A Critique of Psychoanalytic language."

Recently appointed a member of the International Institute of Philosophy, Dr. Ricoeur has done important work on both continental and British philosophy.

The lecture was based primarily on The Interpretation of Dreams by Freud. Ricoeur began by stating that there is today "a problem in the unity of human speech" and that there exists "a general debate concerning language."

He attempted to show the relationship between "knowledge of self" and this general linguistic debate through the medium of dream interpretation. "In dream interpretation" he said, "we can locate the position where psychoanalysis enters the question concerning language." There is an articulation between human desire and language, he added. It is not the dream itself but the text or representation of the dream account in language that is revealing.

What are the dream interpretations composed of and how are they to be interpreted? Ricoeur suggested that the interpretation of conscious speech is not the last word in "Knowledge of Self". Desire often goes in disguise. Language is too equivocal; it often has double meaning, both obvious and hidden. The only way to gain knowledge of self then, is by unmasking unconscious desires through dream interpretation, etc.

Another week, another column! Not that I hate writing them, mind you, it's just that, well, sometimes I wonder if anyone reads them. I feel quite strongly that the W.A.A. teams would appreciate features on the individual sports rather than one or two scant sentences in the column. Maybe I'll publish my column bi-monthly, that's an interesting speculation! A great rationalization for less work.

The Ladies Ski Club gets under way this Thursday at 1:20 pm in the Green Room of the R.V.C. If you are interested in racing skiing, I suggest you attend this first meeting. Anyone partial to recreational badminton, co-ed at that, can still join Tuesdays and Thursdays 7-10 pm in the Currie Gym. Indoor Archery begins this week, every Tuesday night 7:30 and Thursday 4-6 pm, R.V.C. Gym.

Have you ever heard of Martha Graham? Probably, if you attended the first meeting of the McGill Modern Dance meeting. Well, the lists of the two groups are now posted on the R.V.C. bulletin board. If your name is there, please check it off as to whether you wish to continue or not. I highly recommend these modern dance sessions for those who are creative or like to express themselves to music.

The Intercollegiate Volleyball team try-outs will be held tonight at 5 pm in the Currie Gym. The co-ed Gymnastic Club meets every Monday and Wednesday nights from 5-7 pm in the Currie Gym. This is a tremendous way to get rid of that extra poundage!
